

TEMIS forum: setting up of the themis project networking forum

The June 16, 2014

The TEMIS PROJECT NETWORKING FORUM has been published online since June 16th. Available at the address <http://www.conetic.info/temisforum/>, it provides those target publics relevant to the project with the possibility of exchanging opinions and information geared towards participation in the goal which is to disseminate and make the most of the project research results.

This forum complements the mission to disseminate to the project target publics:

- Market. Health services and industry :these segments must maintain a close relationship with TEMIS contents in such a way that companies in the industry can ensure the results of the market transfer project within the efforts to promote and disseminate to industry, deploying tools that complement the staging of meetings and events with companies in IT, health, health services and other interest groups interested in the TEMIS results, including the public administration authorities.
- The scientific community, to whom we wish to offer project dissemination complementing other specific dissemination activities to the scientific, medical and technical communities such as congresses and meetings and publications in scientific magazines.

The forum is a further link in the construction of a cooperation network between those economic activity sectors that can benefit from the project results, in particular, the field of computing and electronic companies, Information Technology, Communications and Electronics and the health sector.

To take part, users must register by following a simple procedure and it can be accessed via any device with Internet access.
